Teachers may also use the Australian Curriculum content to ensure that students with disability are appropriately measured.

English as an additional language

Students for whom English is a second language (ESL) are those who have been born in Western Australia but whose first language is not English. They are learning English as a second language. While most students with ESL have good numeracy) skills in their first language, there are a number of students who have limited English skills, and have difficulty with learning.

While the aims of teaching English as a second language are the same for all students, the needs of students who are simultaneously learning English and a new language. The teaching that explicit teaching that explicit teaching that explicit formal schooling will be effective learning in the classroom.

In Health and Physical Education, when teaching some of the content, teachers should ensure that students with ESL are appropriately measured.

Gifted and talented

Teachers can use the curriculum flexibly to meet the needs of all students, including students with exceptional abilities.

Teachers can enrich their work with learning and content description, learning continua (e.g. thinking capability) and also accelerate student learning. Western Australian state and territory teachers
