The English curriculum is built around the three interrelated strands. All programs should balance and integrate all three strands. Together, they develop understanding and skills in listening, reading, viewing, speaking, and writing, building on skills and processes developed in earlier years, and teachers work to ensure that all students achieve the expected learning outcomes.

In the Pre-primary year, students communicate with peers, teachers and adults, and use language to express their thoughts and feelings.

Students engage with a variety of texts for enjoyment. They listen to and read texts in which the primary purpose is to entertain, as well as some textbooks, various types of stories, rhyming verse, poetry, non-fiction, and participate in shared reading, viewing and storytelling using a range of literary texts.

The range of literary texts for Pre-primary to Year 10 comprises texts from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, as well as the core texts from the Australian literary canon and contemporary world literature, including texts from and about Australia. For students as beginner readers include decodable and predictable texts with simple sentences per page. These texts involve straightforward sequences of events, realistic or imaginary characters. Informative texts present a small range of language features, including simple and compound sentences, words and single-syllable words that can be decoded phonically.

Students create a range of imaginative, informative and persuasive texts.
